Programme Highlights:

Safety is an important element in daily operation and maintenance in facilities. Kai Tak District Cooling System (DCS) is the first public district cooling system in Hong Kong and will be the largest cooling plants in Hong Kong when fully build. The system is characterized by HV electrical system, underground networks and underground plant rooms etc. Operating and maintaining the system reliably and safely requires good planning and coordination from design and build stage.

In recognition of its efforts in maintaining high safety standard to “Zero accident” and outstanding health and safety practices, Hong Kong District Cooling DHY Joint Venture (HKDCJV) was awarded the Gold Award in the category of “Best Refurbishment and Maintenance Contractor in Occupational Safety and Health” on 5 July 2016 at the 17th Construction Safety Forum and Award Presentation Ceremony.

In the seminar, the speaker will share his insights, experiences and tips in safety and health practices implemented in the Kai Tak District Cooling System.
